E-Mail Investigations Just Got Easier...

SilverBlaze Forensic Mail Investigator (FMI) is a search utility that allows organizations to do forensic audits on email systems. The solution provides a robust engine that facilitates email investigations that arise from a variety of actions including litigation, government mandates, and corporate security concerns.

Organizations requiring searches of numerous users and mail files – in some instances years of archived history – can do so far more efficiently and cost effectively, with SilverBlaze FMI.

When would you use SilverBlaze FMI?

Mail systems are a critical repository of organizational information. On occasion, this information must be searched for specific words or strings, as part of a larger investigation. This information must be presented in an organized and concise format to those in charge of the investigation.

Typical scenarios include:

- Litigation
- Compliancy requirements
- Annual audits
- Private investigations
- Mandated investigations
- Mergers and acquisitions

Why would you use SilverBlaze FMI?

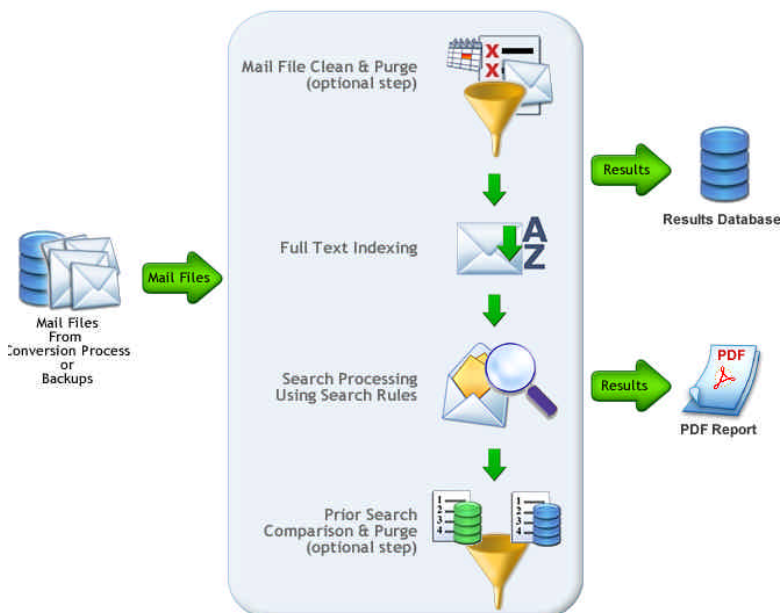

Searching email systems can be very challenging. Typically, this involves large volumes of data, over several time periods, applying multiple search criteria. In addition, results are usually required in a very short time frame.

Typical Challenges include:

- Managing and coordinating iterative searches.
- Necessity to minimize obstacles and processing time.
- Handling unexpected errors and bad data
- High level of logging required.
- Limitations in the mail system environment (Domino/Exchange).
- Temporary requirements of hardware and service resources.

Using SilverBlaze FMI ensures search results can be obtained quickly, with minimal risk. Our solution can be tailored to your organizations requirements.
